Intelligent TECHNOLOGY For K-12 EDUCATION

Building Classrooms of the Future.

In the 21st century, the classroom has changed. No longer is learning material only available in textbooks. Gone are days when learning takes place only in the classroom. Today students must not only learn content but, possibly more importantly, be critical learners capable of using a wide variety of technological devices; students today are often learning for jobs and the use of tools that don't exist yet. Today's classroom must provide students such a learning opportunity.
